LAFC GAME NOTES

SOUND: Match Preview Interview with Caleb Porter and Ignatius Ganago

The Revolution are set to welcome Los Angeles FC to Gillette Stadium for the first time since 2019, the Black and Gold's second-ever visit to Foxborough. The visitors have collected just two victories in 10 road matches this season, carrying a 2-3-5 away record into Saturday's encounter. In their last outing, LAFC battled Chicago Fire FC to a 2-2 draw in South Korean star Son Heung-Min's MLS debut. The longtime Tottenham Hotspur forward, who could make his first MLS start this Saturday, drew a foul that resulted in LAFC's equalizing penalty in his 29-minute performance.

New England will be seeking its first win against LAFC as they meet the 2018 MLS expansion side for the fourth time. The visitors' dynamic attack is led by Gabon international and 2023 MLS Golden Boot winner Denis Bouanga, who is leading the Black and Gold with 14 goals and seven assists. The 30-year-old striker enters the weekend in rare form, having netted six goals with two assists over his last six appearances. In net, LAFC features another former Premier League star in longtime Tottenham goalkeeper Hugo Lloris. A FIFA World Cup winner in 2018 and runner-up in 2022, who boasts 145 caps with the French national team, has eight shutouts on the year.

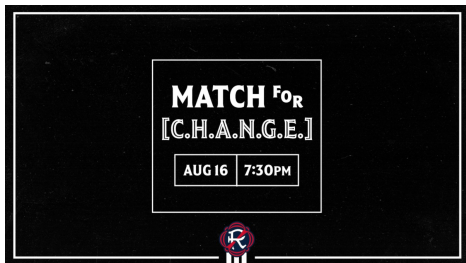

New England returned to the win column last weekend with a 2-0 shutout against D.C. United. The Revolution's ninth clean sheet, tied for second most in MLS, moves the team within one of tying the club record (10), last achieved in 2007. Goalkeeper Matt Turner posted a four-save performance in his first start since returning to the Revolution this month. The United States international owns a 28-9-15 (.683) career record at Gillette Stadium, including 16 clean sheets on his home field.

Last Saturday's win featured a milestone performance by midfielder Carles Gil, who surpassed Revolution legend Taylor Twellman for the most MLS goal contributions in club history. Gil's third goal-and-assist performance of the 2025 campaign earned him a place on the MLS Team of the Matchday. The 2025 MLS All-Star paces New England's attack with nine goals and nine assists this season, putting him on the verge of his third season with double digits in both categories. The Spanish playmaker is set to make his 175th MLS start on Saturday night.

Ecuadorian forward Leo Campana converted his fifth goal of the season on Gil's assist last Saturday, the game-winning tally. Campana has found his form in recent weeks, recording three goals over his last four games played. Winger Ignatius Ganago, who played against LAFC's Bouanga during their mutual time in France's Ligue 1, returned to the pitch last weekend after being sidelined for two months with a quad injury, posting a 27-minute performance to help boost the

Revolution center back Mamadou Fofana also has previous experience against Bouanga from their time in the French topflight. The Mali international has started all nine of New England's clean sheets in 2025, as he looks to add to his 23 starts on the season. On the outside, Ilay Feingold has made three consecutive starts, while 17-year-old Homegrown defender Peyton Miller has already doubled his appearance total from 2024, starting all but one of his 20 games played this season. Miller recorded his second assist of the season in last weekend's win vs. D.C.
