New England nearly opened the scoring in the fifth minute, when Homegrown forward Malcolm Fry delivered a pass into the penalty area for Cranston, R.I. native Gevorg Diarblian, who unleashed a shot from close range that was saved by Carolina goalkeeper Alex Sutton. Diarblian paced the attack in scoring attempts with a team-high two shots on target in the contest.

Revolution II continued put pressure on the Carolina defense before halftime. In the 19th minute, Diarblian made a breakaway and delivered a cross into the box for Fry who missed wide. With space in the 32nd minute, midfielder Allan Oyiwoth tried a shot from distance that narrowly sailed over the crossbar. Goalkeeper Donovan Parisian made a diving save off his fingertips to keep the match scoreless in the closing minutes of the opening half.

New England came out firing early in the second half. Brazilian playmaker Marcos Dias swung in a cross to Swedish international Gabe Dahlin who sent it wide in the 54th minute. Carolina responded with chances of their own and forced Parisian to make another save. The rebound was struck again and cleared off the goal line by Academy graduate Eric Klein who made a sliding dive to keep the match level. Klein registered four key passes in tonight's contest, while Dias logged five.

Carolina Core FC netted the winning goal in the 74th minute, with a cross into the box for Zion Scarlett who snuck it past the hands of Parisian.

In search of an equalizing tally, New England deployed several second half substitutes. Forward Sharod George logged his second appearance of the campaign after making his professional debut earlier in the week. Defender Joe Buck made his ninth professional appearance for New England and Academy product Javaun Mussenden made his 13th appearance for the club. Despite New England's 15 shots, Carolina's late goal made the difference.

New England begins a two-game homestand next weekend, hosting Eastern Conference rival Columbus Crew 2 on Sunday, August 10. Next Sunday's contest kicks off from Gillette Stadium at 8:00 p.m. ET and is available to watch live on MLS Season Pass on Apple TV, with Sean Saint Jacques calling the action.
