The visitors nearly opened the scoring in the fourth minute, when Revolution II center back Victor Souza collided with Huntsville's Adem Sipić in the box. Sipić was awarded a penalty, but his shot sailed over the crossbar to keep the match scoreless. The visitors had another opportunity in the 29th minute, with another close-range shot from Sipić that missed wide.

New England struck first in first-half stoppage time, when a series of give-and-go passes into the box landed at the feet of Oliveira, a 2025 MLS NEXT All-Star, who calmly buried his shot into the bottom-right corner of the net. The 17-year-old Somerville, Mass. native now owns four goals this season across his 19 appearances, 16 of them starts.

Forward Marcos Dias collected his team-best 10th assist of the 2025 campaign, moving into a tie for first place leaguewide in assists. Homegrown forward Malcolm Fry, a Groton, Mass. native, registered a secondary assist on Oliveira's tally, his fourth helper of the season. Fellow Homegrown Eric Klein matched midfielder Gevork Diarbian for the team lead in shots tonight, with two each. Diarbian, a Cranston, R.I. native, suited up for his 50th MLS NEXT Pro career appearance in tonight's win.

Parisian recorded three saves en route to his fourth shutout of the season, New England's seventh clean sheet of the campaign. The 2025 MLS SuperDraft first-round pick made two stops on a pair of late chances in the 72nd and 87th minute. In the final minute of the match, the visitors were awarded their second penalty of the night after Huntsville forward Damien Barker John drew a foul in the box. Alan Carleton stepped up to the spot, though Parisian came up clutch with a diving save to keep the visitors off the scoresheet.

New England will conclude its two-game week on Friday, September 12, hosting Toronto FC II at Gillette Stadium. The 1:00 p.m. ET kickoff is available to watch live via MLS Season Pass on Apple TV, with Jake Griffith providing the match commentary.
