New England enters the weekend with a five-match home unbeaten streak (3-0-2) dating back to the 2025 campaign, including back-to-back wins at Gillette Stadium to open the 2026 home slate. Last Saturday, the Revolution defeated CF Montréal, 3-0, for the club's first shutout of the year. New England, set to play six of its next eight matches at home in Foxborough, has outscored opponents by a 9-1 margin through two games at Gillette Stadium. Overall, New England's 2.2 goals per game is the second-best scoring rate in the Eastern Conference.

New England and D.C. United will begin the 31st season of their historic rivalry, with the two sides knotted at 37-37-16 in the all-time series dating back to the league's inaugural season in 1996. The Revolution collected points in both of their meetings with D.C. United last season, a 2-0 victory at home and 1-1 draw on the road. Both teams' strikers on Saturday represent the Israel National Team in New England's Dor Turgeman and D.C. forward Tai Baribo. Veteran goalkeeper Sean Johnson has started all six matches for D.C., who were blanked by FC Dallas, 4-0, at Audi Field in their last match.

The Revolution featured three different goal scorers in last weekend's victory, with Luca Langoni, Mamadou Fofana, and Peyton Miller all finding the back of the net. Langoni has been one of the league's top playmakers to begin the campaign, entering the weekend tied for second in MLS with five assists. The 24-year-old Argentine logged his second career goal-and-assist performance last weekend and has reached the scoresheet in three consecutive matches.

Langoni was one of two Revolution players named to the MLS Team of the Matchday earlier this week, alongside Fofana, who netted his first MLS goal last Saturday. Fofana has started four consecutive matches in central defense alongside Brayan Ceballos, who owns two goals this season. Goalkeeper Matt Turner collected his 25th MLS shutout last weekend with a five-save performance. Across 11 career games played against D.C. United, Turner owns an 8-1-2 record with three clean sheets.

Miller, who closed the scoring with an unassisted tally in stoppage time last Saturday, has suited up for three consecutive appearances. The 18-year-old Homegrown Player from Unionville, Conn. has netted goals in each of New England's two home games to open the season. Fellow U.S. youth international Brooklyn Raines eyes his sixth straight start this season, while Griffin Yow, who owns one goal over five matches in his debut campaign for New England, will face his former club for the first time on Saturday.

Carles Gil remains one goal away from becoming the second Revolution player to record 50 goals and 50 assists in MLS play. Across 12 regular season career appearances against D.C. United, the Spanish playmaker has tallied five goals and seven assists. Additionally, forward/winger Diego Fagundez is one goal shy of joining elite MLS company as the fourth player in league history with 80 goals and 80 assists in the regular season, while his next goal contribution will mark his 100th for the club. With Matt Polster sidelined for Saturday's match due to a hamstring injury, midfielder Alhassan Yusuf aims for his third start of the season.
