MATCH HIGHLIGHTS

New England opened the scoring just over two minutes into the contest, with newly-acquired forward Wilson Harris slotting home an unselfish pass from Peyton Miller. The Homegrown player picked up a loose ball at midfield, and raced towards the goal on the counter before laying off a last-second pass to Harris who finished into an open net.

After the hosts pulled back level midway through the first half, Miller and Harris nearly teamed up for a second goal but Miller slid a low shot just wide of the post. Miller capitalized in a rain-shortened second session pouncing on his own rebound to restore the lead after his initial shot was denied.

The teams moved indoors for the third session of play, which featured wholesale changes for both sides. Four Revolution II players earned minutes, with Academy products Judah Siqueira, Makai Wells, Josh Macedo, and Joe Buck featuring in the match. Siqueira had a scoring opportunity, but his half volley was parried away.

Philadelphia evened the score early in the final frame with a low shot through a sea of defenders. In the dying moments, New England pulled back in front when Keegan Hughes headed home a free kick from Diego Fagundez into the top corner.

The Revolution, who sit fourth in the Eastern Conference, will resume MLS play with a two-game homestand starting on Wednesday, July 22 vs. Toronto FC, a 7:30 p.m. ET kickoff at Gillette Stadium. The match will be available to watch on Apple TV, and on the radio via 98.5 The Sports Hub, Rumba 97.7 FM (Spanish), and 1260 AM Nossa Radio USA (Portuguese).
