Langoni collected his fourth helper across the last two matches, moving into a tie for the league lead, while Gil's secondary assist pushed him past Sacha Kljestan for the fifth-most road assists in MLS history. The assist made Gil the first Revolution player with 100 assists in all competitions.

St. Louis pulled level in the 29th minute through Simon Becher, who drilled his close-range shot past a diving Matt Turner. In first-half stoppage time, Chris Durkin put the hosts in front, giving St. Louis a 2-1 advantage over New England heading into the break.

The Revolution's best chance of the second half came in the 55th minute, when Gil unleashed a left-footed strike on target, forcing St. Louis' goalkeeper into a diving save. In search of an equalizer, Head Coach Marko Mitrović looked to five second-half substitutes in Griffin Yow, Leo Campana, Diego Fagundez, Peyton Miller, and Jackson Yueill. However, St. Louis found an insurance goal through Marcel Hartel in the 83rd minute, as he intercepted a pass and struck from long range.
