

RECAP: Revolution Draw Toronto FC, 0-0, in Return to MLS Action

New England returns to Gillette Stadium on Saturday to host Atlanta United

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. (July 22, 2026) – The New England Revolution (8-5-2, 26 pts.) resumed the 2026 MLS regular season with a 0-0 draw against Toronto FC (3-6-7, 16 pts.) on Wednesday night at Gillette Stadium, the first leg of a two-match homestand.

In their first action since the World Cup break, the Revolution controlled the tempo and held the edge in shots on target, 3-1, in a tightly contested match in Foxborough. Winger Griffin Yow led the attacking effort with two shots on frame, while midfielder Carles Gil paced the team with four attempts and three chances created. In net, goalkeeper Matt Turner secured his fourth shutout of the season, finishing the night with one save.

The Revolution enjoyed the majority of possession in the opening stanza and generated the first promising look of the contest in the 17th minute through Yow. After New England worked its way into the center of the field just outside the 18-yard box, striker Dor Turgeman slipped a clever outside-of-the-right-foot layoff into Yow's path. Yow, making his ninth start of the season, fired a shot on frame, but Toronto goalkeeper Luka Gavran handled it cleanly.

The visiting side responded with their own scoring chance in the 31st minute, but defender Will Sands made a timely block to stymie the Toronto threat. Turner, returning to action after representing the United States Men's National Team in his second FIFA World Cup, calmly smothered another Toronto attempt a minute later.

New England closed out the first half with a flurry of dangerous opportunities that nearly gave the home side the lead heading into the locker room. With under two minutes remaining, Gil unleashed a curling strike that looked destined for the upper-right corner before ricocheting off the crossbar. Turgeman pounced on the rebound and connected with the captain again, whose follow-up effort toward the right post was denied by Gavran's diving save. Off a set-piece in the final moments of the half, Miller poked a loose ball toward goal, but the attempt drifted just wide right, sending New England into the halftime level, 0-0.

Coming out of the break, Toronto registered a pair of looks on goal in the first five minutes of the second half, with the most dangerous coming from Jules-Anthony Vilsaint, whose shot glanced off the post. The visitors struck the outside of the woodwork in the 60th minute, the Reds' last dangerous chance of the contest.

In search of a breakthrough, Head Coach Marko Mitrović deployed attacking substitutes Wilson Harris and Marcos Zambrano. Harris, entering the match as a 73rd-minute substitute, made his New England debut, while Zambrano logged his third appearance of the season. Zambrano was also one of five active U.S. youth internationals to feature in tonight's contest, alongside Yow, Miller, defender Ethan Kohler, and midfielder Brooklyn Raines.

The Revolution close a two-game homestand on Saturday, July 25, hosting Atlanta United FC at Gillette Stadium. The 7:30 p.m. ET kickoff, which will be followed by a postgame fireworks display, is available to watch on Apple TV in English and Spanish. Tune into the club's local radio calls via 98.5 The Sports Hub (WBZ-FM), 97.7 FM Rumba (Spanish), and 1260 AM Nossa Radio USA (Portuguese).
