SALT LAKE GAME NOTES

PREVIEW SOUND (9/24): Marko Mitrović and M Dániel Gazdag

New England has been setting a blistering pace in the Eastern Conference since the World Cup break, now sitting second in the table after posting a 5-1-1 record in its last seven matches. The Revolution are seeking a fourth straight win and their third consecutive victory away from home. The team's five away wins are top-five leaguewide.

Real Salt Lake was in action on Wednesday night, dropping a 2-0 result at Seattle Sounders FC. Salt Lake has been scuffling, winless in 13 straight games (0-8-5) dating back to May. Rookie forward Sergi Solans paces the attack with nine goals, with Guinean forward Morgan Guilavogui adding a team-high seven assists. RSL is led by accomplished MLS manager Pablo Mastroeni, the former U.S. international, now in his fifth full season at the helm.

The Revolution remained hot with a 4-2 home victory over Orlando City SC last Saturday at Gillette Stadium. Two-goal performances from Peyton Miller and Carles Gil helped the Revs' standouts finish first and second, respectively, in MLS Player of the Matchday voting. Gil set up the winning tally with a secondary assist and now has a career-high 12 goals on the campaign. He joins Taylor Twellman as the only two Revolution players with at least 60 regular season goals. Gil once again finds himself atop the league in chance creation with 73 key passes, as he now needs just one more helper to become the second MLS player with double-digit assists in at least six consecutive years (Preki – 8).

New England has seen contributions from all over the roster this season, with 15 different players tallying a goal in MLS action. Veterans Dániel Gazdag and Jackson Yueill have made a seamless transition into the starting squad in each of the last two contests, with Yueill collecting back-to-back assists for the second time in his MLS career. While the newcomers have made their mark, the Revolution's center back duo of Mamadou Fofana and Ethan Kohler have been among the most consistent pairs in MLS. Fofana leads the league with 75 clearances and Kohler, who earned his first MLS assist against Orlando, is the MLS leader in passing accuracy (95.8%). Left back Will Sands continues to be a solid presence on the wing as one of four Revolution players to start every game thus far.

As a unit, the Revolution defense ranks fifth best in MLS with only 33 goals conceded and a 1.27 goals-against average. When opponents are able to get a rare look at goal, the Revolution have benefited from the elite play of Matt Turner in net. Turner has put himself in strong contention for his second MLS Goalkeeper of the Year with 101 saves, tied for his career high, and 11.41 goals prevented (per American Soccer Analysis), currently on track for the best single-season total in league history ahead of his former teammate Djordje Petrović.
