Revolution II dictated the temp in the early minutes, generating the first two promising looks of the match. In the 14th minute, McIntosh juked his defender on the right flank, driving to the end line before lofting a cross into the box. Homegrown midfielder Javaun Mussenden met the service with a headed effort on frame, but NYFCFC goalkeeper Mac Learned made a save to keep the match level, 0-0. Two minutes later, Sasaki registered a curling shot on target, but the attempt was easily controlled by the visiting goalkeeper.

Despite Revolution II's early chances, it was New York City FC II that struck first. In the 27th minute, the visitors played a ball into the box, where Sebastiano Musu faced up and buried a shot past the outstretched arms of a diving Donovan Parisian.

New England went into the intermission trailing 1-0, but nearly leveled the match twice, with Morgan producing dangerous chances in the 32nd and 35th minutes. On Morgan's first look, Sasaki whipped a corner kick into the box, where the 20-year-old forward, in his debut season with New England, attempted a bicycle kick that rattled off the crossbar. Moments later, off another corner kick opportunity, the Ontario native directed a header toward goal but the ball faded wide left of the post.

In the 57th minute, Morgan leveled the match, 1-1, converting a penalty kick. The forward showed no hesitation as he stepped to the spot, slotting his shot into the bottom-left corner, scoring his team-leading third goal of the season. Five minutes later, Revolution II took the 2-1 lead with another penalty kick, with Sasaki stepping to the spot. In his first professional start, the forward calmly finished, firing his shot into the upper-right corner to secure his first professional goal.

With 14 minutes remaining in regulation, NYFCFC II found the equalizer, making it 2–2 by sneaking a bouncing strike past Parisian. The visitors nearly stole the lead moments later, but Parisian, a 2025 first-round MLS SuperDraft pick, made an impressive quick-reaction save to keep the match level and swing momentum back in New England's favor.

Revolution II secured the game-winning goal when Academy product McIntosh netted a composed finish to put New England ahead, 3–2. In the 83rd minute, Midfielder Carlos Zambrano, who entered the match as a 74th-minute substitute, slipped a left-footed pass through New York's back line to find a striding McIntosh. Using his pace, the 18-year-old drove toward goal and placed his shot into the back of the net, securing his first professional goal.

Revolution II travel for a midweek matchup at Philadelphia Union II on Wednesday, May 13, at Subaru Park. The 7:00 p.m. kickoff is available to watch live on MLSNEXTPro.com and the OneFootball platform.
